To Miss F—

MADAM,

PERMIT your humble Suppliant to lay thus publicly at your Feet, his Key, the Words of which You have privately vouchsafed your Approbation.

I had no sooner finished than I resolved to present it You; You have every Way indeed a Claim, as You stand foremost in the List; for, large and extensive as it is, whether we regard the Number of the Ladies, or the Largeness of many of their Fortunes; their Wit, their Beauty, or those other Qualifications that render your Sex the Ornament of their own, or Delight of ours; I must assure my Charmer NOT ONE surpasses.

'Tis true, (at least I hope it will be true) ere many Days are elapsed You will quit the lovely Company, with whom you now appear enlisted; but consider Madam what a glorious Example You are setting them; Numbers no doubt will follow; perhaps my next Edition will seem an entire new Set; When Miss F—n leads on, who can pause or stand? — Begin then Madam, hasten to begin — Bless the thrice happy Compiler, make the Happiness of a Younger Brother equal to that of his Elder, — Let the Honourable Mrs. M—n in the Connubial State shine with Splendour equal to Miss F—n in the Maiden, and tell a mistaken World that the Appellation Wife bears with it every Sound of Dignity, and demands an universal Reverence; — but why am I talking talking in such a Strain to a Lady of the most excellent Judgment, refined Discretion and accomplish'd Knowledge. You, Madam, require no Instructions. --- All that know you, know your Perfections; -- your Name only in page 22 of the following Sheets sends forth its Beams of Brightness on the Whole; and altho' Numbers of amiable Attendants surround you, yet among them all, we at one View behold you as Venus, and your three adorable Sisters as the three Graces; I could for ever dwell on the Repetition of your Charms, if I were not in immediate Expectation of the Possession of them: Whatever Pleasures, whatever Joys we earnestly covet, we surely anticipate of; when alone I am for ever repeating one Line of Dryden's, Happy, Happy Pair!

DEDICATION.

And wish I could in regard to myself add the Subsequent,

None but the Brave deserve the Fair.

But why do I mention, when alone; alone I cannot be --- for in the Absence of your adored Person your lovely Idea keeps a constant Watch, nor suffers one Dream without its Attendance --- your admired Song dwells on my Mind and ecchoes.

*At Night when in Slumber, still haunted with Care,
I start up in Anguish, and sigh for the Fair.*

Excuse, sweet Excellence, this my publick Worship and accept of it with your wonted Goodness to my private; take the following Performance into your Protection, dis-

perfe

DEDICATION.

perse it among the Centre of your Acquaintance, and conjure those who at present live in that State, which a* great Author terms a melancholy and desert one, instantly to forsake it, and that they may do so, permit me to conjure you in the strongest Terms exalted Love can offer, to lead yourself the Van.

I am,

Madam,

Your most devoted Admirer,

B. M—N.

*Dr. Young.

To all WIDOWERS and BATCHELORS.

GENTLEMEN,

WHOEVER has read the Advertisements in the public Papers of Mr. C—x, and the unknown Lady who accepted of his Proposals, will instantly acknowledge the Usefulness of the following Directory: The Dilemma that Gentleman was reduced to for a Partner, determined the Compiler to set about it: He resolved to spare no Pains: He carefully examined every List of the Proprietors of the public Funds; and made afterwards the best Enquiry he was capable of, into their Fortunes exclusive: As it was impossible to give the exact Fortune of every Lady in so large a List as the following, he thought proper to make in his Kalender, one Column under the Title of Reputed Fortunes.

There are undeniably several Widowers, but many more Batchelors in the perplexed Situation of the Gentleman above-mentioned; some want
